The History of Heddon Lure Company

James Heddon is acknowledged the world over as the creator of the first artificial lure. Little did he know that fishing lure history was being made in 1894 as he cast that first “plug” onto the still waters of the Dowagiac, Michigan mill pond. The ripples that first plug made as it hit the water have touched the lives of generations of anglers. And now, present day versions of many of his early lure creations are still being produced and sold around the world. Many more of the earlier models have found their way into the hands of collectors everywhere. He would not have believed that his early creations would spawn such an avid following of antique lure and fishing tackle collectors.

As the oldest fishing tackle company in continuous operation, James Heddon transformed the way people fished. He took anglers away from cane poles and bobbers with his early lures, rods and reels. These developments allowed them to cast farther, to get their plugs out into more productive water, to catch more fish and have more fun doing it.

Heddon® Swim'n Image®

The Heddon Spit'n Image perfectly mimics the frantic antics of a fleeing shad — in fact, it's the Spit'n Image of one! When retrieved, the Spit'n Image moves from side to side; at rest, the tail sits low in the water. The Spit'n Image Jr. is a little more rounded and has a little more bounce than the original Heddon Spit'n Image.

Heddon adds a new twist to its classic line — the Swim'n Image. This shallow-running crankbait resembles a three-inch threadfin shad. The Swim'n Image has a wide wobble that swims where many other lures cannot. Highly snagless, the Heddon Swim'n Image is particularly effective in shallow water, especially in rivers along riffles and along the top of wingdams.

Heddon Bayou Boogie®

Heddon Sonar®

The Bayou Boogie, an old standard for over five decades, is still the favorite of anglers that know its fish-catching reputation. The Bayou Boogie is a sinking or "count-down" type lure that allows the angler to control its retrieve depth. Its fast vibrating action makes it a very versatile lure whether trolled or cast. This favorite promises to be around for several more decades because it can be counted on to catch fish!

Heddon's only adjustable-action lure. The Sonar's unique line-tie holes allow anglers to adjust the lure's action to match the fishing situation. Whether cast, trolled or jigged through the ice, the Sonar series has the perfect vibrating action to entice most freshwater species into rod-busting strikes.

The Moss Boss is indeed the "boss" when it comes to tempting lunkers into striking from under the thickest moss, weed beds and brush. The Moss Boss has been perfectly designed to glide easily over and through the heaviest of cover, the kind of cover that holds big muskie, bass and northerns. When a lunker spies a Moss Boss sliding through the weeds overhead it makes for one of the most exciting strikes ever!

Heddon® Dying Flutter™

The Dying Flutter is another of Heddon's "million sellers" and has long been a favorite of topwater anglers around the world. This dual prop design creates a surface commotion that will stimulate even the non-feeding fish into a frenzied strike. It can be fished slowly if fish are easily spooked by too much commotion, or "ripped" briskly when fish need an extra wake-up call on the surface. The Dying Flutter is another Heddon topwater legend that prompts those heart-stopping explosive strikes. Dying Flutter anglers know to hang on tightly to their rods because they never know when such a blow-up will occur!

Heddon® Hellbender™

The famous Hellbender began making its way into anglers' tackle boxes in the late 1950s. Over the years, Hellbenders have held many state and world records for most freshwater species. The unique heart-shaped diving lip design gives it the most tempting wide wobbling action. Its big-lip design also makes it dive quick and deep, and allows it to flip easily over most structure. The consummate lure for fishing steep banks and drop-offs...down to at least 35 feet on a long flat-line troll. The Hellbender Downrigger (hook-less) model is known as the "poor man's downrigger." When trolling the angler's favorite trolling lure tied on 10 to 20 feet behind a Downrigger Hellbender, it will take the lure down to over 75 feet.
